

SWB Special Block

Supplementary feed for roe deer

Ingredients:

Crude protein 13.20 %, crude fat 4 %, crude fibre 6.5 %, crude ash 9 %, sodium 0.5 %

Composition:

Rye, maize, triticale, maize gluten feed, linseed cake, pumpkin and peanut cake, molasses, whey powder, lucerne meal, calcium carbonate, monocalcium phosphate, sodium chloride

Benefits of the SWB Special Block:

- Due to a special manufacturing process, the Special Block has a compact and hard structure, which provides for an optimal and sustainable winter feed for game (ruminants). The feed reduces the risk of acidification (acidosis), as contrary to traditional feeding of loose grains, only small quantities mixed with sufficient amounts of saliva get into the rumen.
- Combined with leafy, second-cut lucerne or clover hay, the SWB Special Block supports the optimal feeding of the roe deer during the winter months.
- Very good development of venison and trophies.
- The feeding of several pieces of SWB Special Block helps reduce stress among the game.
- Simple feeding, little effort.

Recommended use:

From the middle of September, one SWB Special Block for roe deer should be provided per feeding. It is essential to make sure that the SWB Special Block is protected against the weather. If the SWB Special Block for roe deer is well accepted by the game, a second SWB Special Block can be laid out in an appropriate distance. That way, even non-territorial game such as two-year-old does and yearlings can get to the feed in an unimpeded manner. For large groups of game (from 10-15 animals) we recommend laying out 4-5 blocks à 10 kg or half 20 kg blocks as soon as winter has set in or the roe deer have accepted the two blocks very well, to keep the game constantly supplied. Supplement fresh succulent feed such as second-cut hay (clover hay) or, better still, good lucerne-clover hay (second cut) in sufficient quantities.
